Association of Nation Stakeholders in Traffic Safety Education

The Association of National Stakeholders in Traffic Safety Education (ANSTSE) is an Association of Stakeholders who successfully identify and advocate areas of common ground for novice teen driver education. The Association was formed in 2010 as a result of the publication of the Novice Teen Driver Education and Training Administrative Standards (NTDETAS) referred to as the Administrative Standards. The Administrative Standards were developed by representatives from the driver education professional community with assistance from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA). The Administrative Standards are to define the future of driver education and assist in improving the delivery of driver education programs nationally. The NTDEAS were revised and released in 2017.

ANSTSE's Mission

- Promote the implementation of the Administrative Standards and keep the standard document and all subsequent Standards as living documents by providing a process to review and update Standards.
- Act in an advisory capacity to support shared decision-making as a community to identify areas of common ground and consensus to support the Administrative Standards.
- Encourage and strengthen support for shared decision-making throughout the Driver Education community to promote implementation of the Administrative Standards.
- Provide support in terms of lessons learned and experience to any state leadership that needs assistance in implementation of these or any subsequent Standards that the Association recognizes.
- Identify and make recommendations concerning areas of the Driver Education process and delivery that need to be refined, researched, validated, revised, and standardized to promote the Administrative Standards.
